Topic	Current Regulations	Proposed Regulations (as of May 19, 2009)
Issue #1: Definitions of Distance Education and Correspondence Education	Current rules (§602.3) define “distance education” but not “correspondence education.”	The committee agreed to new rules that require accrediting organizations to consider correspondence education as separate and distinct from distance education as this relates to accreditation, preaccreditation and expansion of scope. The committee also agreed to new rules that reflect the new statutory definition of “distance education.”
Issue #2: Accreditation Team Members	Current rules (§602.15) require accrediting organizations to include competent and knowledgeable educators and practitioners and the public in the conduct of on-site evaluations and to have means to address conflict of interest in relation to the work of evaluation teams.	The committee agreed to new rules that require accrediting organizations to provide training for accreditation teams, including attention to distance education and correspondence education where needed. The new rules reflect the statutory language.
Issue #3: Student Achievement Standard	Current rules (§602.16) include the statutory recognition standard that an accrediting organization is to examine success with regard to student achievement as part of its accreditation review.	The committee agreed to new rules stating that (1) institutions set their own standards for student achievement (2) accreditors, with their members, set standards for their organizations and (3) the Secretary of Education cannot regulate in this area. The new rules reflect the statutory language.
Issue #4: Operating Procedures – Transfer of Credit	Current rules do not address transfer of credit.	The committee agreed to new rules that require accrediting organizations to confirm that the institutions or programs they accredit (1) have transfer of credit policies, (2) make these policies public and (3) make public the criteria by which an Issue #4: Operating Procedures – Transfer of Credit (Continued)		institution makes a determination with regard to accepting credits from another institution. The new rules reflect the statutory language.

Issue #5: Operating Procedures – Teach-out Plan Approval	Current rules (§602.3 and 602.24(c)) call for accrediting organizations to assure that institutions enter into teach-out agreements (agreements to provide students with appropriate opportunity to complete a program in the event that a program is to be discontinued) with other institutions. The rules describe the requirements for approval of teach-out plans, including equitable treatment of students.	The committee agreed to new rules that require accreditors to review and approve, and institutions to have in place, teach-out plans when a program is to be 100 percent discontinued or 100 percent of the program is moved to a new location.
Issue #6: Definition of Recognition	Current rules (§602.3) do not define “recognition.”	The committee agreed to new rules that define “recognition” as a USDE determination that an accrediting organization “...complies with the criteria for recognition...and that the agency is effective in its application of these criteria.” Recognition remains in effect for the term granted unless USDE officials determine that the accreditor no longer complies with regulatory requirements or has become ineffective in applying its criteria for accreditation.
Issues #7 & 8: Demonstration of Compliance Within 12 Months and Recognition When Not Fully Compliant / Recognition Procedures – Subparts C & D	Current rules (§602.30-602.45) provide for procedures by which USDE receives, reviews and acts upon an application for recognition, including the role of the National Advisory Committee on Institutional Quality and Integrity (NACIQI). Current rules address the appeals process for recognition or adverse action decisions, and requirements on accrediting organizations regarding compliance reporting.	The committee agreed to new rules that modify the role of USDE in two ways: (1) USDE officials monitoring and action between committee reviews have been made explicit and enhanced and (2) recognition decisions may be made by USDE officials independent of NACIQI when statutory authority or appropriations for NACIQI end or there are fewer appointed NACIQI members than needed to constitute a quorum.
Issue #9: Direct Assessment Program	Current rules do not address “direct assessment” of student learning.	The committee agreed to new rules that define a “direct assessment” program as “...an instructional program that, in lieu of credit hours or clock hours, utilizes direct assessment of student learning, or recognizes the direct assessment of student learning by others...” An institution is to obtain approval from USDE for the direct assessment program for Issue #9: Direct Assessment Program (Continued)		Title IV purposes. Accreditors are to evaluate, review and approve such programs and include them in an institution's grant of accreditation or preaccreditation.

Issue #10: Distance Education and Correspondence Education	Current rules (§602.18) require that the accrediting organization consistently apply and enforce its standards to ensure that any program offered, including through distance education, is of sufficient quality to achieve its objectives throughout the accreditation period.	The committee agreed to new rules that distinguish distance education from correspondence education. An accrediting organization can expand its scope to include distance education and correspondence education by notifying the Secretary; a review process is not required. Accrediting organizations are required to assure that institutions track the identity of students who participate in distance education or correspondence education offerings, while protecting students' privacy and notifying students of any additional costs associated with such verifications.
Issues #11 & 12: Monitoring of Institutions and Programs Throughout Period; Operating Procedures – Growth Monitoring	Current rules (§602.19) call for accrediting organizations to monitor institutions for compliance throughout the accreditation or preaccreditation period.	The committee agreed to new rules requiring accrediting organizations to monitor programs and institutions in the case of significant growth. The monitoring and reevaluation approaches required of accrediting organizations are described in detail. These include identification of problems with an institution's continued compliance with accreditation standards that takes into account the strength and stability of institutions and programs. The approaches must include periodic reports and collection and analysis of key data and indicators identified by the accreditor, including but not limited to fiscal information and measures of "student success." Any monitoring of "student success" must be done consistent with the new rules of construction in HEOA that institutions are to set their own standards of student achievement and accreditors, with involvement from their members, are to set organizational standards.

Issue #13: Substantive Change	Current rules (§602.22) operationally define “substantive change” as, e.g., changes in mission, objectives, legal status, degree levels and number of additional locations. In the case of additional locations, the rules describe conditions under which an accrediting organization is to undertake a review of the location for eligibility to participate in Title IV.	The committee agreed to expand the definition of “substantive change” to include contracting with a non-Title IV certified institution to offer more than 25 percent of one or more educational programs. Additional locations may not be preapproved after a change in ownership resulting in a change in control of the institution. Substantive change decisions may not be retroactive when there is a change in ownership.
Issue #14: Record Keeping and Confidentiality	Current rules (§602.15(b), 602.27(f)) call on accrediting organizations to maintain full and accurate records of all accrediting reviews and decisions for the two most recent cycles of accreditation. Accreditors must provide USDE with any annual report and an updated directory of accredited institutions and programs, a summary of major activities (if requested) and any proposed changes that would alter the accreditor’s scope or compliance with recognition criteria. The accreditor also is required to provide information about an institution or program that may or may not be meeting its Title IV responsibilities and other related information that the Secretary may request.	The committee agreed to new rules that modify the record keeping of accrediting organizations. First, accreditors are to provide information about an institution that, on a case-by-case basis and upon request of the Secretary, must be kept confidential. Accreditors are not to inform an institution about an inquiry or investigation conducted by USDE. Second, materials provided by accrediting organizations to USDE for purposes of decision making are covered by the Freedom of Information Act that provides for public disclosure of such materials upon request. Third, accreditors are now required to retain records for one accreditation cycle, except for decisions made by the agency that must be permanently maintained.
Issue #15: Due Process and Appeals	Current rules (§602.18, 602.23(a), 602.25) call for accrediting organizations to sustain consistency in decision making, make written comments available to the public upon request, provide for third-party comments in the course of an accreditation review and work with institutions and programs to assure accuracy in the reporting of accreditation reviews and accreditation status. Accreditors are to accept, review and act upon complaints received. Accreditors are to have procedures in place that satisfy due process, including an opportunity to appeal certain actions.	The committee agreed to new rules that additionally specify how accrediting organizations are to deal with due process and appeals. Accreditors are to (1) provide adequate written specification and notification regarding accreditation, preaccreditation, deficiencies identified at institutions and programs and any adverse actions, including limitation, suspension or termination of recognition; (2) provide an opportunity for institutions to respond in writing; (3) establish an appeals panel to which institutions and programs can appeal an action prior to its becoming final with the power to affirm, amend or reverse adverse actions taken by an accrediting organization; (4) provide additional opportunities for the use of attorneys during appeals and (5) consider financial information in the appeals process as a special case.

Issue #16: Operating Procedures – Summary of Agency Actions	Current rules (§602.26) call for the accrediting organization to provide written notice to the Secretary, the appropriate State licensing and authorizing agency, appropriate accrediting organizations and the public with information on the award or renewal of accreditation, a final decision to place an institution or program on probation or a final decision to deny, withdraw, suspend, revoke or terminate accreditation. In addition, accrediting organizations must provide the Secretary, the appropriate State licensing or authorizing agency, appropriate accrediting organizations and the public, upon request, a statement summarizing the reasons for the decision or when an institution or program decides to withdraw voluntarily from accreditation or lets its accreditation lapse.	The committee agreed to new rules that require accrediting organizations to provide notification of accrediting decisions to the Secretary, the appropriate State licensing or authorizing agency and other appropriate accrediting organizations at the same time the institution or program of the decision is notified. Additionally, accrediting organizations must provide the same parties and the public with a statement summarizing the reasons for the decision, along with evidence that the affected institution has been offered the opportunity to provide official comment.
