

RESOURCES TO NAVIGATE KEY ISSUES IN ACCREDITATION & FEDERAL POLICY

Higher education leaders are facing challenging conditions that threaten the public's trust in their institutions. Now more than ever, institutional leaders need resources that can help navigate the changing educational environment and ensure that institutions deliver the promise of a quality education for every student.

The Council for Higher Education Accreditation (CHEA) is a trusted ally for presidents, provosts, and their teams. Preview our resources on quality assurance and more.

Join CHEA for access to tools that can help your institution thrive.

Accreditation Central

Accreditation Central is CHEA's quarterly newsletter highlighting the latest comments from experts and institutional peers regarding news and policies impacting accreditation.

CHEA Guiding Principles for AI in Accreditation and Recognition

Five key guidelines that all institutional leaders need to know when it comes to the use of AI in their programs.

Leadership Corner

Created for busy presidents and provosts. It is continually updated with the latest, easily accessible information about accreditation and quality assurance.

Federal Update

CHEA's policy experts provide regular Federal Updates that explain how policy developments impact institutions. Check out the latest update.

“When institutions are restricted from discussing race, culture, and equity, they risk undermining the very essence of academic inquiry and democracy.”

In her article, “Higher Education and the Importance of Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion,” CHEA President Cynthia Jackson Hammond, Ed.D., unpacks why higher education institutions must preserve the values of DEI.

Learn more about the benefits that CHEA membership offers to institutions of all sizes, regions, and specialties.

Connect With Us.

Join CHEA Today!